Book Reviews

American Quilts and Coverlets, by Florence Peto, The Chanticleer Press, N. Y., 1949, $2.95.

IN MY opinion, this is the best book of the American Crafts series thus far published. It is informative, entertaining, educational, and withal good reading, even if you have no interest in a quilt or coverlet except as a bed cover . . . and then prefer them of the electric variety. Let not the scarcity of pages fool you; the book is full of information and comment.

Part One is a history of quilts and coverlets from 1748 to 1948, with illustrations of many of the most famous patterns. Part Two is a manual of instruction for those who wish to pursue this pleasant, and at times profitable, craft or pastime, with instructions on how to plan a quilt, choose materials, draw patterns, cut, piece, applique, quilt, make borders and bind. Those of us who have had a hankering for that heirloom quilt which was left to Cousin Emma instead of to us, can remedy the deficiency, with the aid of this book, by making one or more of our own. All collectors who seek decorative motifs for other purposes will find this book a treasure house of suggestions.

One suspects that Florence Peto is not merely a commentator on antique bed covers but that she is wholeheartedly a student collector of these engaging items. When Miss Peto tells how to make a quilt, she tells it as one who not merely knows how it was done but as one who has done it. Parading knowledge is one thing, but living it, and then writing about it, carries the unmistakable stamp of wisdom. And that is what you'll find in this book.

This is truly a nutshell book; a thin but satisfying layer of information on a subject about which not a great deal has been written in late years, but in which many thousands of women are interested. American Quilts and Coverlets is unhesitatingly recommended to all who are interested in old quilts and coverlets, and who want to own or copy these heirlooms.

The Chanticleer Press is to be complimented for the excellent format in which this series is presented, and for the high quality of the illustrations.

American Silver, by Millicent Stow
Wedgwood, by Jean Gorely
Old Dolls, by Eleanor St. George
The Collectors' Little-Book Library, M. Barrows & Co., Inc., N. Y. $2.00 each.

THREE volumes of this library, issued thus far, are of interest to collectors of American antiques. American Silver, by Millicent Stow, was foreordained to be excellent because of the vast store of knowledge and experience that has been compressed into a few thousand words of great simplicity and forthright appraisal. Mrs. Stow, as the wife of the editor of the Antiques Department of the old New York Sun, now continued in the New York World Telegram & Sun, knows exactly what people want to know about early American silver from answering thousands of letters about it. She tells as much of the story as is possible in a little book. The volume is illustrated with 83 photographs of interesting pieces, contains a helpful index and many silversmiths' marks.

Old Dolls, by Eleanor St. George, is an excellent little manual for the beginning collector of dolls, and even for the advanced collector. She is an authority on this subject, and this volume covers most dolls collectible today—Peddler, Milliners' Models, Pre-Greiner and Greiner, M. & S. Superior, China-Head, Wax and Composition, Parian or Dresden, Jumeau, French-Fashion, German-Bisque, Character and "Flirting-Eye", Springfield, Schoenhut, and Fabric. The book is well-illustrated with 77 photographs, and contains a list of terms used in doll collecting, as well as a list of national doll houses and much other useful information.

Wedgwood, by Jean Gorely, is comparable to Mrs. Stow's essay on American silver. It tells the Wedgwood story simply and to the point, and pictures a beautiful parade of Wedgwood of all periods. Many of us are apt to think of Wedgwood in terms of blue and white, black and white, and other color combination relief wares showing magnificent reproductions of early Greek forms, based on the technique of the famous Portland vase. This book demonstrates, through its 97 photographs, that while this form of Wedgwood achieved world-wide popularity and is recognized as one of the great achievements of the potter's art, it was still only a part of the production of the Wedgwood potteries.

Should the balance of the proposed series in the Collectors' Little-Book Library be up to the standard established by the first three, they should serve as a most excellent sales promotion device for bigger and more definitive books on each subject. These little volumes probably will have wide circulation among many just beginning to collect antiques, and while they will serve to whet the appetite of many collectors for more objects, they will most likely serve best in whetting the appetite for more information. These small volumes, packed with information and illustrations, are well worth their modest price of $2.00 and fill a long-felt need for those people who do not require, or cannot afford, the more definite and more expensive books on these subjects.

Antique Antics

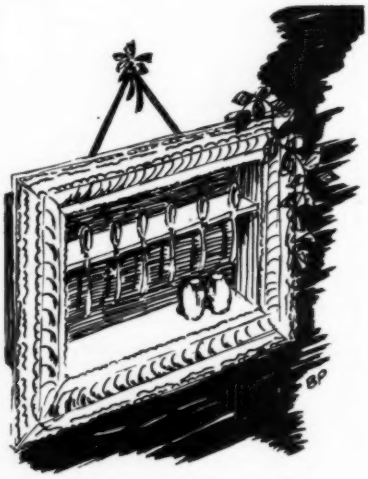
SAD IRON LAMP

Here's a lamp that can't be tipped over! It's a gay decorative note that can be used in any kitchen, particularly in one that sports a hutch table. It makes a wonderful light to eat by. It's easy to make—just drill a ⅜" hole in the handle of an old iron. Slip in a lamp pipe, obtainable at any lamp parts store, threaded on both ends. Screw a socket on one end and two hexagon nuts on the other, one on the top and one on the bottom of the handle. The lamp shown is painted white with a Dutch design on the base and the shade. A parchment clip-on shade does the trick.



SHADOW BOX SPOON RACK

YOUTH

Will Appreciate Antiques as Gifts for Christmas

When you read about Howdy Coale, and Sabra Sahulka's Story in this issue of the Spinning Wheel you will no longer question the wisdom of selecting Antiques as gifts for the Youth of America. Children and teen agers seem instinctively to know there is something about an Antique that commands respect. They love them.

Largest Platers in South are 59 Years of Age!

The Simmons Plating Works of Atlanta, just one year away from the biblical "Three score" mark of sixty years take pride in the fact they now operate three large plants doing commercial work of all kinds, yet serving owners of antiques by replating silver and casting missing parts for the same sort of "restoration" in silver antiques that cabinetmakers offer in the field of antique furniture.

Cut and Engraved Glass

1771 - 1905

The Collectors' Guide to American Wares

BY DOROTHY DANIEL

Here is a complete guide to help you identify, classify, and appraise more than a thousand articles of glass. An invaluable aid for any collector, this also fully covers Etched, Cameo, Intaglio, and Colored cut glass from 1771 to 1905 — tells how to detect imitations; how to distinguish Irish, English, and American glass; how to care for cut glass.

You'll enjoy the chapters on Candlesticks, Chandeliers, Cologne Bottles, and Decanters. You will rely on the Advice to Collectors, the exhaustive Glossary, Bibliography, and Index. You'll treasure the 55 pages of fine woodcut-like drawings — the 100 pages of photographs. 448 pages, $5.95.

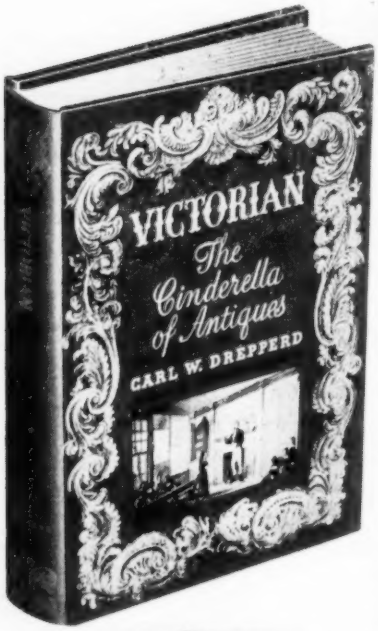
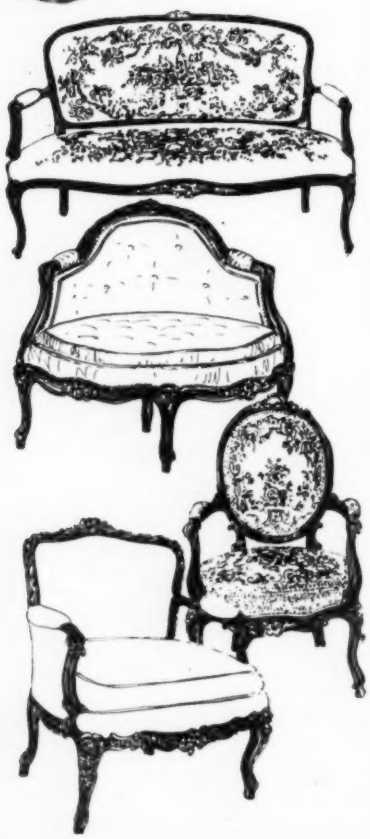
LUSH, PLUSH & ELEGANT

Commentary on the Number One Fall Book for Collectors . . . "Victorian, Cinderella of Antiques", Doubleday & Co.





HERE it is, the book some 50,000 of us have been waiting for—the fearless, explosive, enlightening and entertaining history of the style and vogue we have been miscalling Victorian for these past fifty years or more. Someone has said that Carl Drepperd writes too entertainingly to confine his talent to documentation. It might also be said that he writes with such enthusiasm that it is positively catching. You read, and before you realize it the desire to do something, own something, buy something, makes your nerves tingle. Your's will, as you read this book which will be in the shops about the time this pre-review is published.

There are more pages of illustrations than text. And what illustrations! Here is proof of what the author has been contending for the past ten years —that what we call Victorian is French Antique. This style, or vogue, captured the imagination of our very top drawer buyers about 1832, and by 1840 had replaced just about all of the early American furniture in our finest homes. In another decade the style had accomplished the same result in middle class homes. By 1870 it had done its work in practically every cottage, flat, and tenement in the land. Let us thank whatever patron saints we worship that all American homes had either attics, closets or storerooms. The fine 17th and 18th century things displaced by "French Antique" went into these domestic substitutes for limbo, and there they stayed until the Centennial of 1876 revived interest in Colonial and early Federal antiques.

Have you any so-called Victorian antiques? Have you had a secret feeling that you'd like to own some of them? Here is your book. You'll love it. You'll revel in the history of the style, its baroque quality, how it developed in France, and how it was this style, in its original expression, that Mr. Chippendale copied and on which most of his fame rests. You'll enjoy no end the pithy chapters on elegancies, furniture, silver, jewelry, pictures and prints. And above all, you'll enjoy the documentation . . . the recorded proof of the source of the style, who made it in America, and when. And you may, perhaps with a few tears, learn that a great deal of what has not been included in the term "Victorian antiques" really belongs there—with gilding, ribbons and lace.

With the cooperation of the publishers a few of the illustrations from "Victorian, Cinderella of Antiques" are reproduced here. There are 176 pages of these pictures in the book. And what a cavalcade of mental applecarts these pictures — and their captions—will upset. My grandmother once told me never to think that an upset applecart was something to avoid. "We never had so much fun in our village as when an applecart . . . a real one, loaded with apples . . . upset. That was fun for everybody, including the minister and all other nice people who would never steal an apple. They had fun gathering up the apples for the vendor." That story must have reached Mr. Drepperd's ear. He up-ends the cart, and then he hands all the apples back to you, wiped free of the dust of Victorianism and shining with the glory that was France in the reign of Louis XV, and the days of Lafayette and Marie Antoinette.

One item in this book is too good to keep from you. The Second Baroque revival we have been calling Victorian was instigated by a former New York City school teacher known as Philippe de Bourbon. That's how interesting Carl Drepperd has made the story of Victorian . . . without making up a word of it. All that he reveals in this book has been true all through the years.

In Response To Thousands of Inquiries, Questions and Appeals For Verification and Documentation Concerning All Kinds of Antiques Spinning Wheel Takes Pleasure in Launching This Exclusive Feature

"WHAT IS IT?"

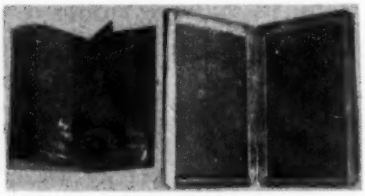
Here, month after month, with the aid of a competent research association, we will attempt to clear the air by stating facts as scientifically as can be in simple language. We must remember that any science is a system based upon what we believe to be so in light of what is currently known.

Have you a question you want answered? Send it to "What Is It?" c/o The Spinning Wheel, Taneytown, Maryland. It will be answered in due time, or acknowledged as unanswerable, as the case may be. If you want quick action, see commentary at the end of this installment of "What Is It?"

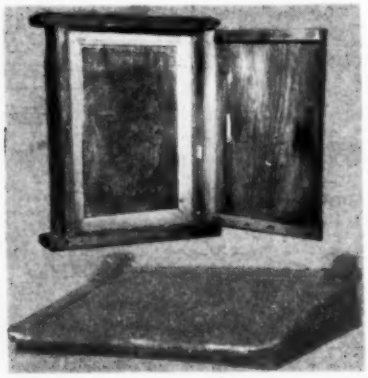
What Is a Book Slate, and What Is a Box Slate?

A book slate is a series of two or more slates hinged together, folding up like a book. A box slate is a writing slate encased in a box with a lid.

Both questions are answered by the excellent photographs supplied by Mary Earle Gould, from the resources of her museum at Worcester, Massachusetts.



Miss Gould also supplies additional information in respect of slates that is too rich and rare to overlook. The Mary Earle Gould Museum contains many items of so-called pioneer or primitive interest, not the least of which are the slates used in early school houses. Therefore, in addition to the simple book slate and box slate, we are showing a book slate produced by the New York Silicate Book Slate Company, made in a variety of sizes for pocket, table and school use, together with a very rare slate desk, a slate being inserted in the sloping lid which, when lifted, provided a receptacle for pencils, sponge and other paraphernalia. The desk-slate, or "slate-desk" was patented 1877. It was made by C. C. Shephard, of New York.

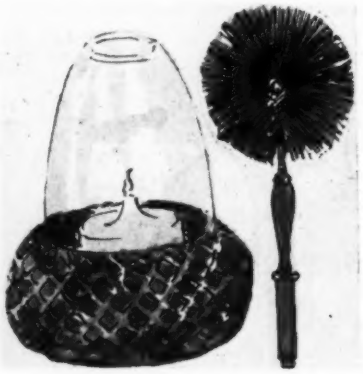


What Is An Acorn Lamp?

It is a night lamp, fashioned of glass, made in two parts. They sold for a few cents each in the 1890's. The base, in the form of the cup of an acorn, was made to hold a night candle. The shade, with a draft hole in the top, was in the form of the oak nut. These were made in clear glass and in delicate colors.

What Kind of a Brush Is This?

A subscriber sends a picture of an ornate-handled brush with fibers springing from the end in a circular form. This item is known as an "asperges". It was not designed as a household brush but as a religious item, used for sprinkling holy water from a holy water font in sacramental services and religious ritual.



What Is a Parure?

"It is surprising how many people ask questions which, if they took the trouble to look, they'd find answered in the big Webster dictionary", says one of our contributors. Recently we were asked the meaning of a term in an old will, "To my niece, Rachel, my parure of diamonds." Parure (says Webster) is an adornment, or an apparel; the term is obsolescent or obsolete. But there is the clue! What the old lady meant was a set of diamond jewelry, generally a necklace, earrings and breastpin. This was an "adornment." The set was the "parure". This term was good English in Shakespeare's day, and was used in the colonies during the 17th and 18th centuries.

What Is "Real Ironstone"?

Walton & Co., of Wolverhampton, England, in the 1820's, developed a new type of houseware for rigorous service which they manufactured from light cast iron, coated with a fired-on white enamel, and looking exactly like fine white pottery. This ware was unbreakable. Soon they patented the glazing process and issued wares with raised decoration which, after the coat of white enamel was fired on, was decorated precisely as china and refired. This ware was imported by several United States firms at Boston, New York and Philadelphia. It reached the height of its popularity in the 1840's and 1850's. Some idea of the quality of the ware may be had from the three items pictured, a water jug, wash basin and waste jar. Many other items of toilet ware were produced, including the usual covered jars, "under-the-bed" mugs, et cetera.

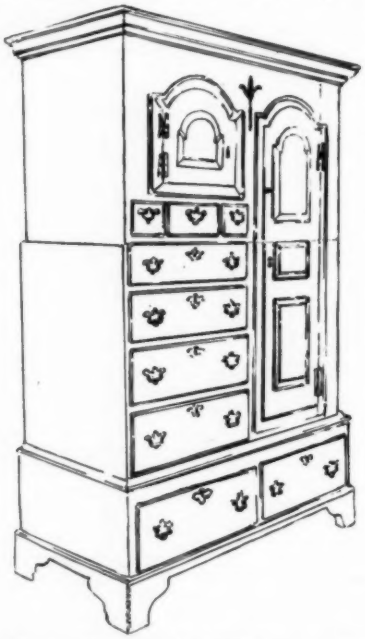
What Is It?

What Is a 3-Piece Chest?

Many names for antiques are local, colloquial, or even "made to suit the case", or invented in the home. This term may mean a chest or wardrobe made in 3 sections, or a chest of simple design made of three movable pieces. Some years ago a fine walnut chest of drawers and cabinets in three sections, one a separate frame, was sold at the Freeman Galleries. The price realized was $200. We have obtained a drawing of this piece which is a true Pennsylvania Dutch "Kasten" (often, and in error designated as a Kas) and may date from around 1720. By truly Pennsylvania Dutch we mean Netherlands Dutch people who settled in some numbers in Pennsylvania. Much that is today credited to Pennsylvania Germans is more than likely true Pennsylvania-Dutch. The piece pictured in its three tiers has nine drawers; there is one small door closet and a large wardrobe door made in two sections, like a Dutch door.



Please Explain the Difference Between Chest-on-Chest, Chest-on-Frame, and High Chest

A chest-on-chest should be precisely what the name describes — a chest, generally of drawers, placed upon another chest, also with drawers. The two elements, the upper one slightly smaller than the bottom piece, belong together. Generally the bottom chest had a flange of molding around its upper structure to hold the top chest securely within its rim. The upper chest, at times, was fitted with brass or iron handles to facilitate lifting, disassembly and re-assembly of the piece. Sometimes the top chest had no drawer, or only one or two drawers, and a lid that could be lifted to get at the chest cavity. A chest-on-chest, then, is a two piece item of cabinet or case furniture composed of two chests, made for use together.

A chest-on-frame is a fairly tall piece of case furniture with from four to six or eight drawers, made to rest upon a separate low-footed frame, often in the Queen Anne or Georgian style, with stubby cabriole legs, but sometimes with square legs or other footing. The frame upon which the chest of drawers rests is always a separate piece. It should be noted, however, that not all chests-on-frames are chests of drawers. In the 17th century a chest without drawers, and only with lid, was sometimes made to rest in a separate frame. From then on the chests were fitted sometimes with one drawer, sometimes with two drawers, and sometimes with three, but still with a top cavity accessible only by lifting the lid. These, strictly speaking, are chests-on-frames.

A high chest is any piece of case furniture comprised of a series of drawers, the entire object being made in one piece. This was never a popular piece of furniture as it was too cumbersome to handle easily. Most high chests of record are in the Hepplewhite, Directoire, Sheraton or other classic styles. Many of these are as tall as highboys, and taller than chests-on-chests and chests-on-frames.

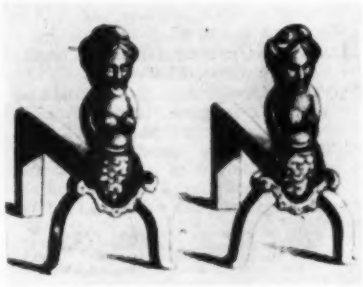
What Is It?

What Is a Fire-Dam?

The proper name is fire-dame. They are figural andirons in the form of cast brass or iron effigies of bare-breasted females busts. Sets of these may be found almost anywhere, as they were not only imported but recast by various foundries. The pair pictured was found at Portsmouth, N. H., where it was said to have been in constant use since 1875.



What Is Known About a Big Board On Which Letters of the Alphabet Run in Tracks?

Edwin Allen, of Windham, Conn., in the 1840's invented and made sliding boards fitted with letters of the alphabet, in both upper and lower case, for use in schools. Teacher and pupil could assemble words and sentences by sliding the letters from an upper and lower magazine to three horizontal channels in the board. Mr. Allen also made an arithmetic board using the numerals and zero in sufficient numbers to compose arithmetical problems. A complete unit of this kind is now excessively rare, as most examples have been broken or are incomplete when found.

Is There Such a Thing As An Air Conditioned Rocking Chair?

Believe it or not, there is. L. V. Badger of Boston is said to have constructed rocking chairs which ran on platforms. In addition to the spiral springs and shock absorbers of India rubber, Mr. Badger had a large bellows in the base undtr the platform, connected with a series of India rubber tubes perforated so that the air circulated around the head and body of the person rocking in the chair. This monstrosity was one time called the "air circulating rocker".

Did They Ever Make Potichamania Vases Out of Hurricane Shades?

Indeed they did. When Mr. Godey, in his Lady's Book, June, 1855, first told the story of potichimanie, he told people to paste the pictures in Bohemian glass vases, and pictured the type of vase to buy in clear glass. The people who could not buy or get such clear glass vases used the next best thing. Those having old hurricane shades decorated these. Some of them anchored hurricane shades in turned wooden bases and poured cement into the bottom to hold the shade in place. They even used such decorated hurricane shades for umbrella stands!

What Is The Difference Between a Coat-of-Arms and a Crest, and Is It Un-American to Display Either or Both?

A coat-of-arms is a badge or insignia granted by royal warrant to individuals for display in connection with their names. Both men and women of a family could display a coat-of-arms. A crest, however, was designed only for male members of a family and was used primarily as an insignia on the helmet to identify the man in armour. Thus to say that Dolly Madison or Betsey Ross, or some other famous woman here or abroad, had a crest is to be in error.

As to the use of coats-of-arms and crests in America, it is not un-American or unrepublican to display one. Hundreds of our early settlers, from the early 17th century, even Quakers and Puritans, were proud of their coats-of-arms and displayed them on bookplates and elsewhere. In Philadelphia, New York and Boston there were artists working from the early 1700's who made a specialty of drawing and coloring coats-of-arms for the people.

BEGS Leave to inform the Publick, That he performs all Sorts of Drawing in Water Colours, such as, Sea Pieces, Perspective Views, Geographical Plans of Harbours, Sea Coasts, &c. Also, colours Pictures to the Life, and draws Coats of Arms, at the most reasonable Rates.—Specimens of his Performances, particularly an accurate View of the Blockade of Boston, with the Landing of the British Troops, on the First of October, 1768, may be seen at the Golden Ball and Bunch of Grapes Taverns, or at Mr. Thomas Bradford's, North-End, Boston. 6-22

What's The Difference Between a Dower Chest and a Dowry Chest?

A dower is a widow's legal portion of inheritance from a husband's estate. The dower may be an annuity, a farm, a house or something of the sort. Dowry, however, is a betrothed girl's portion, a dot or endowment given to her prior to or upon her marriage. A dowry chest was a girl's hope chest.

Almost every day, somewhere, in print is committed the error of calling a dowry chest a dower chest. Let us remember from here on that the chests most generally called dower chests are not really that at all but are dowry chests.

The example pictured, dated 1764, is from Lancaster County, Pa., was formerly in the collection of Stogdell Stokes, Esq., and was a part of his collection sold a few years ago at the Parke-Bernet Galleries, by whose courtesy the picture is reproduced.

What Is It?

What Is a Heart-Wing Table?

This is a most unusual tuck-away or folding table. The frame is two upright posts with extended footing and a broad bar across the top and across the bottom immediately above the footing. Hinged to the top bar is a large oval or round table top. Between the top and bottom bars there is a large wooden heart-shaped piece of wood with iron uprights in the form of a "J" affixed to either side. This heart-shaped piece is pivoted top and bottom. When the table top is swung to cover the bar and has horizontal position, the heart is swung at right angles to its position between the bars and thus forms a support for the top of the table on either side of the top bar. An example, made in Virginia about 1740, is now privately owned by a Richmond collector.

What Is Pinxton?

A ceramic ware made at one of the kilns established by William Billingsley, to whose skill was also due establishment of the works at Swansea and Nantgarw. He was also affiliated with the Derby china works. Pinxton is a village in East Derbyshire. In 1796 Billingsley established himself at Pinxton as a producer of painted china and porcelain ware. His associates had come with him from Derby, where he had served his apprenticeship. He was famous for his flower painting. Examples of Pinxton are pictured by courtesy of Virtue & Company, London.

What Is Webb Cameo Glass?

A superfine flint glass or crystal, overlaid and cut, made by Messrs. Webb of London, and generally to order. Tiffany & Company of New York, from the 1860's, often designed special services of glassware which were executed by Webb. The cutting was often done in the form of cameos and consequently the ware was generally called Webb cameo glass. Some idea of the value of this glass may be gathered from the fact that a wine service of 210 pieces was sold at the American Art Gallery in 1886 for $18,000. Other examples of cutware by Webb, ornamented with gold and platinum, were considered of the finest by our immediate ancestors. This is one glassware that should be researched by an expert and a well-illustrated monograph published.

What Is An Angle Lamp?

This was the trade name for a kerosene-burning hanging lamp, sometimes also made as a wall lamp. A squat central reservoir had one or two arms springing from it at an angle. These carried the burners, around which were fitted special globes and shades.

What Is a Reeded Rug?

Similar in appearance to hooked rugs but generally smaller in size, reeded rugs were done by an entirely different process. The rug material, whether of tapes of fabric or cord, was pulled over a reed to form loops. Upon removal of the reed, the loops were either cut or left in loop form. Reeded rugs were made in the 18th century. It is a superior form of rug hooking.

Reverse Silhouettes of Flowers; What Are They?

These are sometimes called Bailey cut flowers and sometimes Bailey flower silhouettes. Harriet Bailey of Walworth, Wisconsin, cut flowers from white paper, free hand, and mounted them on dark colored papers. She sold these in quantities at the Centennial Exposition of 1876, where many were purchased for framing and some have survived. An example is pictured. Miss Bailey's work was exquisitely done, and they are indeed reverse silhouettes of American flowers.

Very Young Collectors

by Nellie W. Jones

HOWDY Coale, five years old, is the youngest antiques collector in America. This statement by Howdy's mother has stood thus far without contradiction. Meantime, the parents of other children of comparable or more years listen with awe to tales of how Howdy protects both his own and his mother's collections. The majority of the parents who hear about it would like to infect their own offspring with the same gentle virus.

Howdy's collection is neither vast nor impressive to anyone other than himself. It is composed of seven alphabet plates, some of china, some of glass, all old, and all his own to handle and admire. Howdy has been collecting alphabet plates for more than two years, which is to say he has spent about half of his lifetime in the pursuit of his hobby. His first alphabet plate was a reward for being a good boy while his mother was off on an antiqueing expedition. He was so enchanted with his antique plate, on which he recognized the characters "H" and "O", that thereafter he waved goodby to his mother on her every antiqueing foray, asking for "anuvver pwate." Upon attaining the ripe old age of four years Howdy, on occasion, was taken along while his mother sought antiques. He began spotting ABC plates and suggesting they be purchased for him.

Howdy has seen to it that his younger brother, John, aged two and a half, develops respect for antiques. Both youngsters stop short of touching anything when they hear the warning, "Careful, that's an antique!" Visitors to the Coale home are accepted by Howdy when they show appreciation of antiques. His acceptance of any guest is the privilege of letting them eat a piece of cake from one of his own plates. While the plate is in the visitor's hands Howdy sits watching, not the cake but the plate.

Other parents, who are also collectors, might find it very practical indeed to intrigue their offspring by starting them collecting something. Of course the most desirable things would be unbreakable objects such as souvenir spoons or metal cups. Incidentally, ABC plates were made for very young children, stamped from tin-plated sheet iron. Small objects of pewter might also be good things to start a child's collecting interest. Other items are miniature furniture, stoves, Noah's arks and animals, and certain of the early, unbreakable toys, including dolls and even hobbyhorses. Another very sensible item might be early nursery-type pictures.

Howdy's father had some misgivings about the propriety of his son's antiques collecting interest. At one dinner table conversation the father talked with his son as follows: "Howdy, which do you like better, football or antiques?" "Antiques," said Howdy. "Baseball or antiques?" "Antiques," said Howdy. "Cowboys or antiques?" asked his father, grimly. "Cowboys," said Howdy, "I like cowboys better than anything."

Have You Any Discolored China?

I have developed a method of restoring Gaudy Dutch, Spatter, Leeds, Adams and all soft paste china to its original color, without harming the piece.

If you have any worthwhile cups, saucers, plates, sugar bowls, teapots, etc., I will either purchase them or restore them to their original condition. Charges reasonable.

No repairing. No repaired pieces accepted for restoration.

The ABCs in Collecting

by SABRA SAHULKA

WHEN I was about eight years old my parents, who are collectors of old things, both junk and antiques, often poked around in musty old shops, or went to a lot of antiques shows and dragged me along by the hand. They hoped I would grow up to like antiques and acquire some knowledge about them. But I had a collection of piggy-banks which was started for me by my Mother when I was six months old and even when I spotted a bank which they called Bennington, or Ohio, or something, I felt I had things at home which I liked better and they didn't cost as much.

Most of the shops were cluttered up with expensive bric-a-brac and often I wasn't allowed to walk around by myself. Everybody was always saying "be careful and don't touch anything!" I was bored by my antiques shop and show visits. It didn't register with me, that's all. And then, one day I found a plate! I loved it. It had the letters of the alphabet around the rim and there was a picture in the middle; a picture of three children at a table listening to a lady who was saying the verse:

"Oh, that it were my chief delight to do the things I ought!
Then let me try with all my might to mind what I am taught."

This was titled "Flowers That Never Fade" and "Instructions." It appealed to me because I thought the plate was pretty. And that is how my collecting of antiques started—with ABC plates. I do not know how far it will go but it surely interested me and still does. I mean the ABC plates.

The lady in the shop explained there were many ABC plates from Staffordshire and other old potteries; ironstone, pewter, tin, milk glass, all made for the children of years ago just as we now have Mickey Mouse and Three Little Pig plates today, not to mention the Big Bad Wolf. We were told that many people collected these old plates to hang on walls and put in cabinets. So that is what I did.

My second ABC plate, like the first one, was Staffordshire. It was a little one, only four and a half inches across, with an inscription "The Old Grandfather" and a picture of an old man and dog approaching a house where two little girls stand with outstretched arms to greet him. This I could understand, so I got that plate. From there on my collecting was a matter of showing interest, and asking, in various ways, for the plate. A girl's allowance money at ten years of age doesn't pay for much of an antique, you know. [Please turn the page]

(I will include 2 cups, with thin hairline cracks, and saucers with above.) Bouillon set: 6 cups (2 handles) and saucers, gold trim with small gold grape clusters $20.

Royal Bond: Vase pitcher, hand painted, 12" high, lovely flower design on 3 shades of blended green background. Would make a gorgeous lamp or perfect as it is $22.50.

Our Find Of The Month, Oil painting on porcelain, pastoral scene, cattle in foreground by water, windmill in background, signed Alice B. Garlarid; porcelain 10¼" long, 7" high, frame 13¼" long, 9¾" high. Truly a prized possession $55.

All items proof unless stated otherwise. No reproductions. Please write wants. Stamp appreciated. Transportation and Crating extra . . . please include. We carry a general line of Antiques.

I have a Leeds plate with the alphabet and then the corresponding hand signs of the deaf and dumb under it. This is a sad thing for children to think about, but it is certainly practical. Another of my plates has the letters of the deaf and dumb sign alphabet with two extra hand positions, lettered "good" and "bad" over them. In the center is a group of little owls, one looking quite subdued and abashed, while a wise old owl towers over him giving a lesson in accepting the bad with the good as we all must do.

Pretty soon I learned that ABC plates do come in many sorts and kinds—in series and sets of wild animals in native lairs and natural colors; in nursery rhymes, Bible stories and verse; farm yard and domestic scenes; Robinson Crusoe and other adventures — hunting and fishing, Nations of the World, and many other things a child might understand, or be curious about while occupied with the tedious business of eating to grow up into a big man or lady as it were. Then Barnum & Bailey's Elephant "Jumbo" was put on a plate, and General Tom Thumb was put on a little ABC plate. Another kind of ABC plate has a riddle on the front with the answer on the bottom. We can imagine the lucky Mother coaxing Junior to finish his cereal or pudding in twenty-six spoonsful so he could turn his plate over to see the answer on the back.

Some of my plates are quite browned with age and are crackled, showing they were put on a stove to keep the contents hot while waiting for some child to come and eat his meal. Some of them have famous people on them, with current topics and maxims. One I have shows Dr. Franklin and gives his advice: "Want of care does more damage than want of knowledge. For want of a nail the shoe was lost and for want of a shoe the horse was lost.

Education indeed began at an early age in those days and with all due respect to our modern trends, now it sometimes stops there.

They made dolls' dishes with ABC's on them. I once found a miniature ice cream platter and six little saucers in clear glass, each with a bowl of ice cream pictured on them, spoon buried deep, and the alphabet around the edge. Little girls could then practice their ABC's by teaching their dolls.

One of my unusual plates is all in red. The alphabet is around the outer edge, numerals up to 52 around the inner rim, then the names of the months and a clock face with hands. So we know that some grown-up would be asking of the owner, "Now do you know your ABC's? Can you count up to ten? Can you tell time, little girl?"

Staffordshire ABC plate with transfer decoration in the Chinese style. Alphabet in relief, but not accented by color.

Now I'm almost twice the age I was when I started collecting ABC plates. As I look over my thirty plates making a pattern on the walls of my room and in my cupboard, I think of the many children they belonged to, of the shops, and the peddlers who must have carried some of them to homes in the country, selling goods and stuff and relating the latest news. That, combined with the fun I had collecting, and the experience I gained, and the friends and acquaintances made, and the people who gave me plates as gifts, make every one a cherished possession and a good start in collecting.

Not the largest stock in the country, but every item is strictly "Guaranteed". Stamp please.

All scarce toys, but particular attention should be paid to the singing bird in cage, (you blew through the tube and the bird sang); the Weeden steam fire engine, which threw a stream of water 10 feet; and the marvelous Webber musical doll which would sing a song by virtue of a little organ imbedded in the body. All of the toys pictured date from the 1840's to the 1880's.

TOY COLLECTING

Stops the Flight of Time!

by Carl W. Drepperd

SOME people have three hundred sixty-five Christmases a year except leap years, when they have three hundred sixty-six. These lucky people are toy collectors. In addition to having Christmas every day, they have something which cannot be had from any vitalizing cream, hormone, rouge, lipstick or girdle magic. They have eternal youth—in their minds. Their avocation stops the flight of time. And, in the main, they invest less money in their time-stopping hobby than most seekers after eternal youth.

There is much to be said in favor of toy collecting. First, there are many toys to collect; the majority of them are not too expensive, and toys enhance in value about as fast as any other antiques. There is literature, tradition, music and song about toys. They are as ancient as any antique in the entire gamut of collecting. Toys were made before glass was discovered. Every step in the social progress of the human race, every invention, discovery, frill and foible was—and is—reflected in toys. It is doubtful if Robert Fulton's "Clermont" was five years old before there were toy Clermonts in the shops. The first motion picture machines were toys. There were toy automobiles before Henry Ford built his first car. There were toy electric lights before Edison made the toy a practical light for grownups.

Of course, you needn't believe all this. You can even look at the pictures here displayed and say "t'ain't so!" But be warned. Toyland is wonderland because, in the creation of a toy, any man or woman can exercise imagination without limit. No matter how much the practical ones of this world would penalize, criticize and crucify your idea if you said it was for them, they would applaud you to the skies if it is a toy you are inventing.

Since this country of ours offers enough toy material for all but the most specialized collectors, this excursion into toyland will deal almost exclusively with American toys, toys either made in America or for the American market. The first big surprise any serious toy collector meets up with is this: the tin toy industry of the world started in the U.S.A. We developed it in the 1840's or earlier. We lost it to Germany in the 1890's for a very good reason; it was no longer possible, with America's high wage rates, to make tin toys to sell at five, ten and twenty-five cents.

No one need hesitate about becoming a toy collector. It is no longer a sign of balminess or some other softening of the intellect. The late Walter Chrysler was a toy collector—he collected mechanical banks. Corporation presidents, famous doctors and lawyers, scientists, taxicab drivers, debs and dowagers all collect toys. Squeak toys. Dolls. Hobby horses. Toys that go—mechanical and steam-driven trains on tracks, boats, sawmills—everything.

PEARL BRADLEY HENSHAW

A mechanical toy is a toy that "does something" by clock-work or other internal motive power. This Power may be generated by the falling of water of sand, by steam, electric battery, or a spring released by a trigger. There are also semi-mechanical toys which have to be pulled, played, or otherwise motivated. There are scientific electrical toys going back almost two centuries, magnetic toys almost as old as the mariner's compass, and rocking and bouncing toys almost without end. There are miniature models of locomotives, fire engines, side-wheeler and propeller boats . . . run by steam.

An idea of the interest in toys, both latent and active, may be gathered from the literature devoted to specific categories of toys published in the last decade. Louis Hertz' books on mechanical toy banks, tin toys and miniature railroads are definitive works. Ina H. Bellows' first book was about mechanical toy banks. There are several books devoted exclusively to dolls. But this literature is not the only printed matter about American toys. Practically every maker of toys, from the 1840's, issued catalogs of his wares. Frequently the catalogs are illustrated. You could buy eight copies of almost any modern book on toys for the price now asked for an illustrated toy catalog of 1850. Scores of serious toy collectors seem recently to have had their attention drawn to the value of toy catalogs. Some toy enthusiasts are advertising; not for toys but for toy catalogs.

In order to demonstrate both toys and the resources of early toy catalogs, all our illustrations are taken directly from old toy catalogs or from catalog pages of toys appearing in periodicals. The dates range from 1843 to 1903. No effort has been made at categorical division but certain categories are, perhaps, worthy of your particular notice. For example, in the world of dolls there is a variety in which mechanism or device makes the doll a talker, a singer, a cry-baby, a walker, a dancer, and so on. In the field of mechanical toys there are squeak toys and hot air toys, the latter running forever and ever in any sustained updraft of air. A burning candle will run them; so will the heat of a stovepipe.

The Zoetrope, an early motion picture machine, is a fascinating optical toy. This device is the father of the Kinematograph and the Magniscope, both 'magic lanterns' projecting 'films', and sold as toys at the tail end of the 19th century. Recently, when it was suggested to a certain large producer of movie equipment that they celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the home motion picture machine, they laughed and said, "Nonsense, this business began in the 1900's." Any toy collector could—and one should—take this manufacturer to one side and tell him the facts of life about his industry.

Mechanical cast iron toy banks. Twenty-five years ago they were junk; today they have an enviable antiques status. Top: The Santa Claus bank. Next: Football Players. Next: The Prancing Pony. Bottom: The Speaking Dog. You could collect fifty, all different, mechanical toy banks—if your budget would stand the strain.

GIFT OPPORTUNITIES

Here they are, a galaxy of advantageous purchases, many of them pictured and many more noted for your observation. All items priced to include packing. Transportation paid by purchaser. No goods shipped C.O.D. Send check or money order with order, and enclose stamped addressed envelope, please.

On these two pages we list examples selected from our comprehensive stock of antiques and elegancies of other days. With but few exceptions these are Hudson River Valley antiques, but some are from the Pennsylvania regions. Every item warranted as listed. On returns, customer pays all transportation and packing.

(1) Some would call this Mary Gregory, perhaps, but we designate it as a clear glass pitcher with ruffled rim, 9" high, with enameled floral decor., large pontil and other good points, $7.

(5) Silver Salver, marked WC (probably William Cooper) and Hallmarked (c. 1840). Engraved with later presentation legend dated 1876. A beauty, $45.

(6) Waterford Wine Glass Coolers (they do look like finger bowls but they're not) a pair, 4½" high, early, $15.

(8) Majolica Pitcher, Owl Shape, 9" high in natural colors. $15.

(9) Important Shell Punch bowl of French Porcelain, probably early Limoges. Rococo shell shape, 13½" diameter, 5" deep. This is really something. $45.

(10) Potichimanie Decorated Hurricane Shade. These are excessively rare. Such work was done during the glass decorating craze of the 1850's, but this shade was old when the work was done. A beauty. Some buyer would strip off the decor. But it is unique as is. $35. It is 21" high.

(11) Meissen Covered Tureen, onion pattern, 9½" diameter, 5" deep. Crossed swords and MD mark. A beauty, $90.

(12) Meissen Platter, 10 x 14". Crossed Swords mark, Onion pattern, $20.

(13) Lucky Day for Bone Dish Collectors. One to a dozen, all different, at $2 each. Some Wedgwood opaque porcelain.

(15) Staffordshire Spaniels, a pair, male and female. One 12½" and one 13" tall. Yes, they have salmon pink noses! The pair for $45.

(16) MINIATURE OBJECTS (pictured). Caster Set with 4 tiny pressed, U.S. Shield bottles $6.50. Staffordshire Victorian tiny vases, $3.50 each. Bristol Glass milk mug (milk glass, too!) with "Remember Me" on it, yours for $10. Very small majolica pitchers, $4.75 and $6 each.

(17) WEDGWOOD JASPER PITCHERS. These are all marked (England). All have classic cameo relief figural decoration. One, 4½" high at $12. Another, 5¼" high is $15. Ovoglobular one, 5" high, $25.

(18) NOVELTY PITCHERS! How about a Rockingham "Cry Baby" at $5? It's Yours! A Jackfield type, all black glaze, with colored floral decor., is 8" high. It is yours for $12. That round one, looking like a puzzle jug, is a Royal Doulton wine jug and the price is only $10. There is a shadowy monk pictured on it.

(19) Yes, that's a PAIR of Ribbed Fern Pattern pressed glass spooners. Clear glass, $15 for both.

(20) Rarer than Historic Blue Staffordshire are these Purple lustre banded black transfer "Hudson River Views" wares. Here are 8 cups and saucers in this rare china, together with a cream ewer and its underdish and a covered bowl with lustred flower finial. This Set will go to a collector who knows what's what, and why! $125.

(21) Mechanical Toy Swing, big enough for dolls, and it works. Needs paint. Spring driven. 17" high. $12. Yes it needs aligning but it's early and good!

(22) PEWTER CANDLESTICKS. An Early 19th century pair, baluster shanked, $20. A later (c. 1850) pair at $16.

THE BUCKMAN MFG. CO., 634 Broadway, N.Y., will furnish by Express a PERFECT-RUNNING TOY STEAM-BOAT.
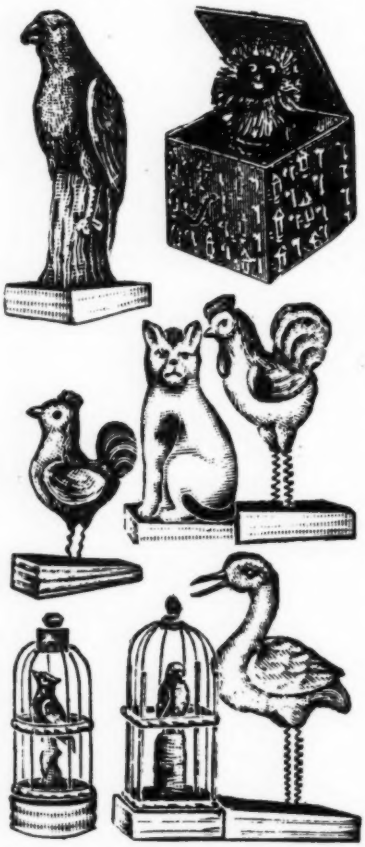
16 inches long, 6¾ wide. No. 1, plain, $5.00; No. 1, orn., $7.50. No. 2, plain, $7.50; No. 2, orn., $10.00. Postpaid, a Steam Whistle for all Toy Engines, 15c. The Young America Engine, $1.50; No. 1, $2.25. Little Giant, double cylinder, $3.50.
Liberal Discount to the Trade.

Mechanical Oarsman. Can be used in any tub, or on a sheet of still water. When the toy is wound up the oarsman will row the boat a distance of about 25 rods, feathering his oar, and going through all the motions of a crack oarsman.



Top: One of the finest miniature steamboat toys ever produced — the Buckman side wheeler of 1878. This toy, 16" long, sold at from $5 to $10 depending upon style of decoration. Below it; Toy rowboat with oarsman. Wind it up and the little tin man rows the boat 150 feet or more on still water. Bottom: a collection of "Squeak" toys. The jack-in-box had a reverse bellows action. All others squeaked when the bellows was depressed. Parrot, robin, hen, cat, birds-in-cages and stork are but a few of the many squeak toys made from 1820's.

My uncle has a steam locomotive that was given to him for Christmas, as a boy, in 1896. His father paid $3.50 for it. Today, because it is still in good running order, with tender, two cars and a three foot diameter circular track, that toy is worth ten times its retail price of sixty years ago. Dolls that once sold for a dime are scarce at a dollar. Unbreakable pressed wood dolls, made in Vermont in the 1850's, originally sold for less than a dollar. But not today. Get a tenspot ready if you seek one, and don't expect change.

When a certain category of toys becomes a collecting vogue, prices rise faster than the elevators at Radio City. Take, for example, the current vogue for cast iron mechanical banks. Twenty years ago any quantity of them could be purchased at from twenty-five to fifty cents each, and the seller would have thanked you for buying them. Today the prices range from a few dollars upward to the record price of fifteen hundred dollars, reputedly paid for a Harlequin and Columbine bank in 1950! Dolls, also, have achieved high prices. Mechanical tin toys and steam toys, while not cheap, can still be purchased at prices that will make their 1960 values look sick.

It does not pay a collector to ride a vogue. It is wiser to anticipate vogues or to forget them until they subside. There is one good reason for avoiding vogue collecting, and it is this: When you collect a thing because it is the vogue to collect it, you are openly declaring that you do not have a mind of your own or a collecting instinct you can rely upon. You are being guided by the activities of others.

Because the field of toys is so wide and so varied, there is opportunity for most of us to specialize in a specific kind or type of toy and thus, perhaps, start a vogue of our own. In this little excursion mention is made of motion picture toys. It would be possible to collect zoetropes, phenakistoscopes and other devices, with their paper films, and have a collection Walt Disney would envy. Why? Because the films for these early optical motion machines were the first Silly Symphonies.

You could, if you liked, collect toys run by sand power exclusively. These are called sand toys. You could collect hydraulic toys, tin toys, iron toys, glass toys, paper toys, squeak toys, wooden toys. You could collect toy furniture or toy pottery and china. The world of toys is the world of adults in miniature, including many things which are today considered inventions of great moment, but which were first represented as principles in toys for the amusement of children.

Virginia Doll Collection

A Case History

by Solange Strong

Immediately below is Emma Lou, a wax doll with blue glass eyes. She is 39" tall. She has a squeak box in her tummy and earrings in her pierced ears. She is from Winchester, Va., and younger than the dolls she overlooks, at bottom.

These are a quintet of early wax-over-composition dolls. All have molded hair except one at left. Her hair is real, and she has wire-eyes. All have original clothes except two in center.

Doll Collecting is now so universal an interest that Spinning Wheel is indeed happy to present this intimate, personal story as exemplary of the joys of doll collecting.

THERE is an age at which every female is overcome with a passion for dolls. Some start very early; others, like Mrs. Bentley Gregg of Lincoln, Va., succumb only after they have become grandmothers. As the ever-increasing number of dollologists throughout the world clearly shows, the malady is highly infectious. Although first symptoms are rarely alarming, after-effects seem to be permanent.

About fifteen years ago Mrs. Gregg underwent an operation requiring a considerable and very quiet convalesence. It was in this weakened condition that she was stricken with doll disease. Having expedited all the "busy work" that could be found for her, she happened to think of her grown daughter's old bisque dolls lying disheveled in the attic. Mending, repairing, and finally re-dressing them proved abnormally fascinating. Soon she discovered others to restore.

When the neighbors asked what she was doing, her children were forced to admit, "Mother is playing with her dolls." Friends and relatives began donating discarded beauties, which Mrs. Gregg gratefully named after the donors. She, herself, began poking through old trunks, first turning up Lorena Holmes, a century-old wax over composition doll dressed in her original tarlatan dress and pink petticoat. Originally belonging to a maiden aunt, Lorena had been bounced on the knees of Civil War soldiers in the Lincoln neighborhood.

With her health finally restored, Mrs. Gregg began frequenting antiques shops. On trips away from home territory, even roadside stands yielded new specimens. Today the total hovers around four hundred—a fair beginning.

The dolls range in size all the way from the 3′ 3″ antique waxen Emma Lou to some tiny modern Mexican dolls measuring 3/8″ and lying in a half inch hinged seashell. All are numbered and catalogued. Among them are Amish dolls with buttonless clothes and Kentucky McCoys made of corn husks. Representatives of every time and place are made of rags, plastic, shells, wood, peanuts, walnuts, hickory nuts—everything.

Learning that Mrs. Gregg was becoming something of an expert, Lincoln villagers began asking her help and advice on doll problems. She learned to carve new arms and legs from bits of wood, to paint new faces and boots, and to replace worn-out clothing. Tricks, like painting a necklace over a cracked neck, began occurring to her. Old China heads needing new stuffed bodies began accumulating. At the moment, there are at least thirty waiting, so spare time work is no longer a problem.

A convention of dolls in the Gregg collection. On the settle, from left to right, is a Lenci stuffed doll from Italy; china-headed doll of 1860; tiny Virginia Hacher, rarest doll in the collection, of papier mache. She has spoon hands and sports original dress. C. 1830. Next, doll in sun bonnet; a small Paris doll; and a Civil War period doll. Finally, a big lady in papier mache. In center, on settee at right, is a Greiner doll.

It is a short step from repairing an old doll to making one outright, and some of the finest in the collection are rag dolls made by Mrs. Gregg. The mother in the "family" is clothed in scraps from Mrs. Gregg's own bridal "going away" costume. A ballet dancer, two Quaker ladies, a colored mammy and several children, have all emerged with distinct personalities of their own.

As far as possible, the antique dolls needing new clothes are outfitted in materials of the same period. Old laces and braids, woolens, taffetas and hand-embroidered underwear of bygone days are religiously collected and later cut down to fit. As often as possible, tattered clothing is carefully reproduced in identical material. The black satin coat of Virginia Hatcher, a lovely little pre-Greiner papier-mache, is an exact copy of its shredded original.

Favorite of the collection is a wire-eyed wax belle from the Valley of Virginia. Completely original except for the old lace used to cover the rips in her dress, she is a fine example of the type described by Janet Pagter Johl in More About Dolls:

> "It is believed that the wire-eyed doll . . . was in existence in 1825. A wire from the upper hip passed through the body of this doll connected with the back of two blocks of wood on which the eyes were mounted. When the wire is pulled downward, the eyes open. When the wire is raised, the eyes close . . . these wire-eyed dolls were earlier than the counter balance device for doll eyes that appeared at the beginning of the nineteenth century and which greatly modified and improved the customary implacable glassy stare."

Kept carefully packed away most of the year, the dolls are displayed every June when the Washington, D. C., Dollology Club comes out to admire them and enjoy the country sunshine on the Gregg lawn. Every child for miles around is irresistibly drawn, and is made to feel welcome. Many gentlemen are brought to see them, too. They frequently start out feeling foolish or looking superior, says Mrs. Gregg, but they almost always wind up interested—and ask the most intelligent questions!

When packed away, the dolls are far from forgotten, for collecting entails a world of secondary paraphernalia. A library on dolls accumulates on the bookshelves. A lot of doll furniture creeps in. (An old carriage of Mrs. Gregg's and the cradle her grandfather cried in began this department.) Meanwhile, the scrap bag has to keep expanding to meet demands!

Antiques Star with the Stars

by KATHERINE J. JUSTH BAROSS

The Story of David Brian

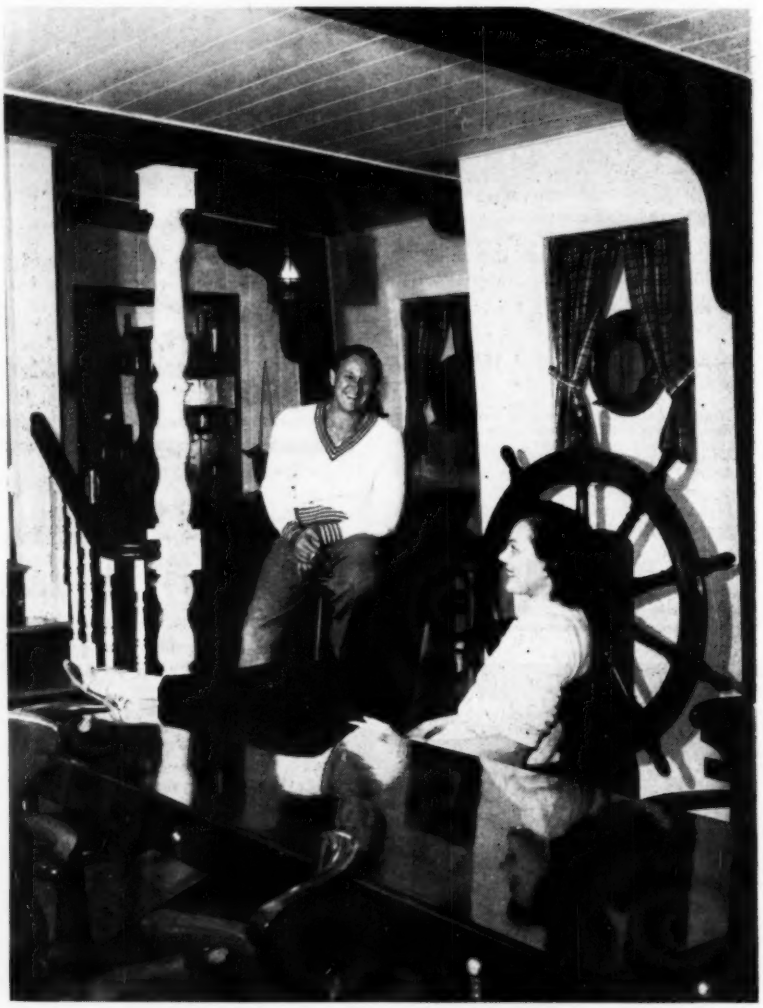
IN the San Fernando Valley of California, at Sherman Oaks, a hilltop adobe house has a most unusual room furnished with authentic antiques. This is a den that, from beam to highly polished table, was removed in its entirety from an old fourmasted schooner which at one time sailed the seven seas. This house is owned by David Brian, one of the young film stars of Hollywood. His career is amazing.

Brian Davis, a handsome blue-eyed lad, son of a fireman, was born August 4, 1914, on Vinegar Hill, New York. At sixteen he was about to choose a vocation for life. "I'll become a carpenter," he decided. "I'd like to design fine hand-made furniture. Not factory stuff, but beautiful pieces such as the craftsman of old designed." Brian learned the trade as an apprentice, and came to know in detail the beauty of Hepplewhite, Sheraton, and the Directoire we call Duncan Phyfe. He took up graphic art and spent many hours in studying antique furniture and design. He became an expert carpenter, and whistled and sang while working, in a sonorously fine voice. He also kept up his favorite boyhood sport, swimming, and developed a splended physique. "One of my most vivid memories of my Vinegar Hill boyhood is diving into the Hudson off the 135th street docks," Brian reminisced in his California hilltop home.

He received his schooling at Annunciation Grammar, Townsend Harris High, and City College, New York, where he was a member of the swimming team. Swimming is still his favorite sport. He took no part in school dramatics, and knows of no member of his family who had anything to do with the theater. Fate and talent launched him on a brilliant theatrical career that culminated in film stardom. In Hollywood, where his name was changed to David Brian, he stepped into star billing with his very first picture.

It all started when the handsome youth, attracted by the theatre, took a job for less pay as an usher and ticket-taker at the Roxy Theater, New York. Here, a mute cog in a vast machine, he was not allowed to sing or whistle at work. But from the velvet curtains of the entrance door he was able to study the mechanics of the art of acting and the construction of scenery and sets.

One day, on his way to lunch, he noticed a friend standing with a group outside the Imperial Theater on 46th Street. Learning why they were there, he joined them. Before his lunch hour was over he was engaged as one of the group of singers in the musical show "Crazy Quilt." During rehearsals, his voice and pleasing appearance caught the attention of the director. David was given a chance to sing one of the leading roles, and was on his way to fame. "Bitter Sweet," "Prince Charming," and other musical shows followed. Then a tour in South America. He bought an antique Spanish guitar, learned to play it, and accompanied his own songs, His Latin audience went wild with enthusiasm.



The Brians, David and Adrian, enjoy their antique, nautical den in their San Fernando Valley home. Entire room, from ceiling beams to mirror-like polished table, comes from an old, four-masted schooner. Snack bar has all-pewter accessories.

During World War II David served in the Coast Guard. After his discharge in 1945, he was in a New York show which was a failure. This discouraged him and, using some accumulated savings, he came to Los Angeles to go into business as a building contractor. A player was needed for the motion picture, "Flamingo Road." He fitted the part, a contract was drawn up and, because of his natural acting ability, he was a success in the picture. Five more pictures followed starring David. His sixth, "Break-through," is now in the making. Thus America gave a top chance to a clean-cut American boy.

David settled down in Hollywood. Studious, friendly, he is no spendthrift, saves his money. He swims at least a mile every day, takes a daily gymnasium workout, and is a comparatively early riser—always up at seven in the morning. He is good at ping-pong and tennis, reads extensively, loves antiques. At Warner Brothers, where he is under contract, David often strolls around the studio lot to watch the construction of period sets. He enjoys visiting the huge property department warehouse, where he finds antiques of great interest.

On such a stroll he met Adrian Booth, a young actress. Congeniality developed into love, and David married Adrian in July, 1949. A month after their marriage they purchased their San Fernando Valley home in Sherman Oaks, buying the house five minutes after they had first seen it. "We just felt this was our home," David said. "Pondering? Taking time to decide? There was no such thing. The price was sensible, I could afford it, so it became ours."

When they bought the house it was furnished in modern. Then David, combining his love of nautical life and antiques, bought the furnishings of his nautical den, lock, stock and barrel, from the old four-masted schooner. The room was removed from the ship in its entirety—walls, floors, staircase, appurtenances and furniture. David, an expert in refinishing, supervised the careful installation and restoration. The old portholes were inserted as windows. Old hanging ship lamps were electrified, pewter accessories were placed in the snack bar, and a collection of old prints, representing early ships, was framed under glass and hung. "There is room for more prints," said David, "but I think we have done well for the first year."

The other rooms are still in the slip-cover and modern stage, with antiques here and there. Buying antiques is a special pleasure for David and Adrian, and they plan to take their time in buying the authentic antiques they want.

The Complete Book of Furniture Repair & Refinishing, by Ralph Parsons Kinney. New York, 1950; Charles Scribner's Sons. $3.50

CLEAR, concise, step-by-step directions for the refinishing of furniture, a manual of tools and their uses, plus about all the curious arts, secrets and mysteries of cabinetmaking and upholstering, revealed in one book for the amateur, is what this author has accomplished.

The illustrations, often picturing not only the "before and after" aspects but also the middle steps of the transition, are a splendid device for instructing the home shop worker. There is, however, one phase of instruction in this volume which may be dangerous knowledge for the uninitiates of antiques collecting. It is possible, on occasion, for a tyro to find a piece which he may think is quite homely, and improve it to his own satisfaction only to destroy all, or most, of its antiquarian value. This is well illustrated as a case in the author's own pictures of a pine kitchen cupboard. The original condition (painted) of this cupboard, the width of the stile and rail elements, etc., connote age and antiquity far superior to that of his refinished product, also pictured. It is sad but true that, among those who have not been informed, many items of furniture made for painting in the 18th and early 19th century are now considered in "original" condition only when scraped, scrubbed and discolored with orange shellac, and then oiled or waxed. Also, there may be some experts who will not agree with the author that paint remover can be used without destroying the patina of a piece. But these are matters that cannot overshadow the very real and genuine worth of the author's contribution to home refinishing and furniture care.

The Pine Furniture of Early New England, by Russell Hawes Kettel. Dover Publications, N. Y. $10.00.

SINCE its appearance in 1929 this volume has appealed to the collector of antiques, the dealers, decorators, architects, craftsmen and designers. Mr. Kettel approaches his subject with a dual purpose: he quite definitely improves our understanding of New England pine furniture, and then tells us how its equivalent can be recreated by anyone with an urge to handle the simpler tools of cabinetmaking.

This book contains informative essays on pine, the manner in which it can be used in furniture construction, and the hardware originally associated with the different pieces. Nils Olsen, Albert Hoedtke and Walter Macomber have done excellent drawings for illustrating this book.

Mr. Kettel's study comprises chapters dealing with wall boxes, chests, stools, benches, stands, tables, desks, shelves, cupboards, mirrors, lamps, signs and weathervanes. There are 206 excellent reproductions from photographs by Carles Darling, all excellently captioned with copious notes.

lector are the fifty measured drawings which will prove very useful to anyone desirous of reproducing, restoring or repairing the original New England pine furniture. The simplicity of New England pine furniture is one of its greatest charms. Few people realize that Swedish modern has much in common with New England pine, with American Shaker furniture and with Chinese furniture. People with limited experience in woodworking can use this book as a guide, for it is just as much a craftsman's monitor as it is a collector's compendium.

Dover Publications have done a worthwhile thing in bringing this book out in the cheaper $10.00 edition so that more people may take advantage of this excellent material.—Wirt Crapster

Decorating for and with Antiques, by Ethel Hall Bjerkoe, Doubleday & Company, Garden City, N. Y. 1950, $3.95

HERE is a book that should fill a long felt want among those of us who, either fearful or resentful of the professional interior decorators, have decided the term was just a synonym for supercilious patronization . . . and wanted none of it. Mrs. Bjerkoe takes all of the eye-wash, hokus-pokus, and la-de-da out of decorating. She makes it what you have always suspected it should be, the happy combination of knowledge with good taste and good sense. Whether you are an antiques collector or not, or whether you like interior decorators individually or collectively or not, has no bearing on what you can do with this book. Page after page of it will act as a nudge to you to do something you've always wanted to do, suspected should be done, or you knew needed doing. Likewise, page after page will echo your own ideas and ideals. Who was it that made the sage observation "nobody can learn anything they do not already know instinctively"? There is scarcely a woman in the United States today who will not agree this inexpensive volume is an excellent companion in that it doesn't cram anything down our throats, but rather extracts from our own capacities the "know-how" that makes a room, a house, or a mansion livable; a place you like to come home to. Congratulations to the author. She has some closer to the mark in this book than many other professionals who have had their try and failed.

So-Called "Scandinavian Glass" Fully Identified by Mrs. Oliver Kamm.

In the August 1950 SPINNING WHEEL, Seletha Brown told the story of her grandmother's Dominecker, and pictured a group of sulphur yellow dishes in opaque glass "commonly called Scandinavian." Almost immediately upon appearance of SPINNING WHEEL, Mrs. Oliver Kamm, a leading glass expert, was kind enough to write to the editor as follows:

"Most of the so-called Scandinavian glass shown at the top of page 10 of the August issue of SPINNING WHEEL was made by the Harry Northwood Glass Company at Indiana, Penna. Five of the items are of the intaglio pattern dating from 1899, and two of the items, the small open compote and the large flat bowl, are Klondike or Chrysanthemum Sprig, dating from 1899. Of course this glass had no relationship with Scandinavia."

It is because of such unselfish cooperation on the part of experts in the field that more and more general information is circulated for the benefit of all of us. One of the devices used by distributors of glass in the middle west was to give a name to a sort of glassware which seemed to be popular with certain types of settlers, in the hope of attracting more such settlers as customers. Thus we had Dakota glass, Scandinavia pattern, Danish glass and Norwegian. Few, if any, of these, as pattern names, were printed in catalogs with the exception of Dakota.

Statement of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, Etc., required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912, as amended by the Acts of March 3, 1933, and July 2, 1946 of THE SPINNING WHEEL published monthly at Taneytown, Maryland for October 1, 1950. State of Maryland, County of Carroll, ss.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Marjorie M. Smith, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that she is the Editor-Publisher of THE SPINNING WHEEL and that the following is, to the best of her knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc. of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the act of August 24, 1912, as amended by the acts of March 3, 1933, and July 2, 1946 (section 537, Postal Laws and Regulations), printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are: One and the same, Marjorie M. Smith.

2. That the owner is: The Spinning Wheel Publishers, Inc., Taneytown, Maryland. Names and addresses of stockholders holding one percent or more of the capital stock are: Marjorie M. Smith.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgages, and other security holders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: Marjorie M. Smith.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

Marjorie M. Smith, Editor-Publisher

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 29th day of September 1950. Murray M. Baumgardner, Notary Public. Commission expires May 7, 1951.

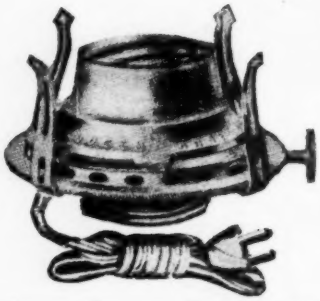
NEW GYRO QUEEN CONVERTER

Saves Time . . . Saves Money . . Looks Better

NOW THE MOST POPULAR CONVERTER MADE



Gyro Queen Converter
Makes Your Old Lamp Glow Again . . . Not With Sputtering Oil Wick . . . But With Modern Electricity . . . Without Sacrificing the Old Time Charm.

Join the thousands who have discovered this beautiful converter for changing lamps from oil to electricity. All brass burner keeps the antique look. You don't have to worry about thin plating that chips or peels off. An old style "wick key" replaces unsightly turn-off-switch knobs. It is really attractive . . . and practical . . .

In ½ minute your lamps is electrified. Just unscrew the old burner and screw on the Gyro Queen Converter. There is no wiring to do, no time lost. This beautiful converter saves you time . . . and money . . .

The QUEEN is moderately priced, based on large volume sales. Considering the more attractive appearance, fine construction and materials, this converter gives you more value than ever before offered. When you convert with a Queen your lamp is worth dollars more, and yet our low price is only $2.00.
